WELCOME

Welcome to MSU's seventh annual Learning Abroad Conference!

Our conference this year focuses on a central theme:

“Growing Through Challenge: Learning Abroad in a Time of Global Change.”

This year's presenters will discuss how their education abroad experiences address issues related to this topic. MSU has a long-standing tradition of global student mobility. This conference is designed to allow students to share what they learned abroad with the MSU community, family, and friends. The conference features both students who are studying abroad at MSU and MSU students who have returned from various programs outside of the U.S.

We sincerely thank the presenters for their willingness to share their experiences and expertise. We are also grateful for all of the conference organizers, coaches, and moderators who have made this event possible:

STUDENT PRESENTATIONS

Panel 1 | 1:00 - 2:00PM | Room 303
MODERATOR: Gail Vander Stoep

“Culture: To Change or To Accept?”

Dominican Republic
Ece (Ace) Erder (Turkey)

Ece moved to MI at the age of 18 for college. She travelled a lot. Last abroad trip was to Dominican Republic with MSUCOM: Pre-Clinical Observation, Culture and Medicine Program. While she was pretty fascinated by the culture and the opportunities there, her classmates shocked her with their comments and ideas about the country and its locals. She will address how important it is to realize culture is a fluid, a spectrum and not a disc or a box.

“A Crossroad between Aspiration and Duty”

United States of America
Ratna Raja (Indonesia)

Originally from Indonesia, Ratna has lived her life in multiple nations including India, Australia and the United States. Today she will be talking about the political changes in Indonesia and the United States that have revealed and shaped her identity status and kept her in the journey of identifying and effectively dealing with life-changing challenges.

“Ojos Nuevos: Seeing the New Challenges of Global Medicine in Peru”

Peru
Matthew Mayeda (USA)

Matthew Mayeda is an osteopathic medical student that studied abroad in Iquitos, Peru during the summer semester of 2018. With the initial expectations of improving his clinical skills and visiting Machu Picchu, he was pleasantly surprised to also find himself immersed in diverse environments that inspired him to pursue a career focused on empowering communities to conquer the new challenges of modern medicine.

STUDENT PRESENTATIONS

Panel 2 | 1:00 - 2:00PM | Room 305

MODERATOR: Elizabeth Matthews

“Violence Against Women in Spain”

Spain

Haylee Sieg (USA)

The presenter studied in Valencia, Spain with MSU’s Spanish department in Romance and Classical Studies. The presenter took classes in Spanish language, literature, and culture while living with a host family in the city of Valencia. The program allowed for students to design their studies to fit their own interests; the presenter chose to focus on the history of women and women in current events, specifically violence against women.

“Observe. Adapt. Repeat.”

United States of America

Erik Amezquita (Guatemala)

Erik is from Guatemala and did his bachelor degree in Guanajuato, Mexico. He now pursues his PhD degree at MSU. After being abroad for five years in Mexico, moving to East Lansing was a smooth transition. He’ll focus on the skills he learned in Mexico that later made a difference in Michigan: identify your vital needs; observe and adapt your surroundings to fit those needs; repeat the steps above until you feel at home. Erik admits that moving to a different country on your own is always challenging, but each time it gets a bit easier.

“Understanding Complicity in America While Abroad”

South Africa

Elizabeth Lancaster (USA)

During a First-Year Seminar Abroad to South Africa, Elizabeth Lancaster learned a lot about racism, classism, and power. While interacting with people of different backgrounds living in South Africa, she ended up confronting what it means to be complicit towards an oppressive government, and what that might mean in America.

STUDENT PRESENTATIONS

Panel 3 | 1:00 - 2:00PM | Room 307

MODERATOR: Antoinette Tessmer

“Becoming Locals: Learning to Adapt to Malawian Society”

Malawi

Nicole Gross (USA) and Diamond Day (USA)

The presenters traveled abroad to Malawi for research for 3 months with a program through the MSU College of Human Medicine. They plan to talk about how they took advantage of their experiences to submerge themselves in the culture and local environment on their own. They also plan to talk about the challenges of conducting research in a developing country.

“When Life Throws You a Hail-Mary, Make the Catch”

United States of America

Korn Supatrabutra (Thailand)

Korn Supatrabutra is an international undergraduate student from Thailand, currently a junior and majoring in Supply Chain Management along with a minor in Sports Business Management. The speaker is a Thai-native, who spent the first 15 years of his life in Thailand before making a life-changing decision to come study in the United States back in 2013. Being in the United States, a place across the world from his home country, allows him to learn and try things he hasn't heard or seen before. One of the things he now loves the most is (American) football; his passion for the game has a significant impact on his life, and ultimately his career path.

“Canada: Curing our Curiosity of the 6”

Canada

Jada Flowers (USA), Clarence Abby IV (USA), and Myesha Johnson (USA)

The presenters journeyed to Canada with MSU's Detroit M.A.D.E. program as a pilot study abroad trip that would serve to inform the creation of a future Education Abroad program. The experience was designed to provide a comparative experience of people of color in Canada and the U.S. They will explore their newfound appreciation of diverse worldviews and awareness of minority and indigenous populations.

STUDENT PRESENTATIONS

Panel 4 | 2:00 - 3:00PM | Room 303

MODERATOR: Gail Vander Stoep

“Bread for the World: Modern Christian Community in Western Europe”

United Kingdom

Mitchell Eithun (USA)

What is the role of the Christian church in the 21st century? Across Europe, large church buildings are emptying out and winding up in state possession, forcing Christian communities to find new ways to reach people. While studying in the UK, Mitchell Eithun met with several Christian groups engaged in innovative ministry and noticed simple ways that modern communities are performing acts of love and justice in urban settings. Hear about his experiences visiting an intergenerational gathering, a cafe church and an underground monastery. Mitchell is a graduate student in Computational Mathematics Science and Engineering (CMSE) and also works with Campus Edge Fellowship, a graduate/professional student ministry at MSU.

“Lasting Impressions”

Belize

Desiree Bennett (USA)

Desiree traveled to San Ignacio, Belize with the College of Social Science for a service learning expedition. For a week, she learned about and encountered contemporary issues within a developing country. She will share with you her experience of listening to young kids open up to her about their mental health and how her week-long trip made a lasting impression.

“Under the Same Sun (Debajo del mismo sol)”

Argentina

Jaclyn Rey (USA)

Jaclyn is a graduating senior studying Kinesiology with double minors in Health Promotion and Spanish. She served as an intern in Buenos Aires, Argentina interpreting the ancient practice of yoga and meditation to patients with multiple sclerosis. She will share an inspirational message shaped by her experience working and living within the Argentinian culture.

STUDENT PRESENTATIONS

Panel 5 | 2:00 - 3:00PM | Room 305
MODERATOR: Elizabeth Matthews

“Dare to Challenge Yourself?”

United States of America
Zi-Shin Mia Lin (Taiwan)

Mia is a graduate student from Taiwan. Currently, she studies Teaching English to Speakers of Other Languages at MSU. Like many other international students, she had the challenge of making American friends when she first came to America. In her presentation, she will address how she challenges herself to overcome this obstacle and makes connections with people. She will also share how she benefits from this experience.

“United States or Narnia? - Discovering Myself in Another Land”

United States of America
Asif Iftekhar (Bangladesh)

The presenter is an international undergraduate student at MSU, majoring in Computer Science and on the road to completing a minor in Game Design and Development. He was born in Bangladesh but moved to Saudi Arabia at the age of one and spent the first fifteen years of his life there. He then moved back to his home country before coming to the United States two years later. In his presentation, he will discuss the challenges and obstacles he faced over the course of his journey relating to identity, cultural shocks, and adaptations, as well as the lessons he picked up along the way.

“The Greece They Don’t Show You”

Greece
Zach Bosco (USA)

The presenter had the opportunity to study abroad in Greece for 6 weeks. Not only did he gain knowledge he also gained a new outlook on life. Working with refugees opened Zach’s eyes and helped him to appreciate the little things in life. Throughout his presentation he will discuss his experiences working with refugees and how he has grown through the study abroad.

STUDENT PRESENTATIONS

Panel 6 | 2:00 - 3:00PM | Room 307
MODERATOR: Antoinette Tessmer

“It All Started with a Bus Ride”

Italy

Katarzyna Purzycka (USA)

Katarzyna studied abroad in Rome for six weeks this summer. She encountered some unexpected situations at the beginning of her program and discusses how they forced her far out of her comfort zone, teaching her to grow in self-confidence and adaptability, and ultimately helped her decide how to use her gap semester after graduation.

“Fighting the Outside”

United States of America

Maria Pia Itzaina (Uruguay)

The presenter is a junior studying Finance at Michigan State. She was born in Uruguay but raised in Brazil. The presentation will focus on how she was used to the Brazilian culture, how the US culture differed from it, and how she managed to overcome the differences of both to learn and grow.

“The American Zulu Experience”

South Africa

Jeremiah Grant (USA)

As an exchange student, Jeremiah Grant lived in Durban, South Africa for 5 months, while in pursuit of his Public Policy degree. Originally interested in learning more about the Post-Apartheid culture in South Africa, Jeremiah was able to obtain firsthand experience of the effects of that regime on the KZN area. His presentation, titled “The American Zulu Experience” focuses on his experiences in South Africa and with the Zulu culture.

STUDENT PRESENTATIONS

Panel 7 | 3:00 - 4:00PM | Room 303

MODERATOR: Karen Kangas-Preston

“A Lesson in Humility: Life, Death, Science and Medicine in Nepal”

Nepal

David Posawatz (USA)

David, a physiology major, studied abroad in Nepal during the Summer of 2018, focusing on infectious diseases under the One Health model. In his presentation, he shares the insights gleaned from a developing nation and encourages us to learn from the Nepali people in terms of their developments in science and medicine, their attitude toward love and acceptance, and their approach to death and dying.

“Banned from Home”

United States of America

Ursula Abou Rjeileh (Lebanon)

The presenter is an international student majoring in Animal Science and Pre-Vet. She will be talking about how, over the course of three years, she came to realize that getting a college education in the US as an international student would not come without hardships, both stemming from cultural barriers and political agenda. She will mainly focus on how the travel ban affected her and other students she met. At the end, through determination and getting involved at MSU, she was able to overcome her fears.

“Don’t Hold Back: Facing Mental Illness Abroad”

Ecuador

Briana Magin (USA)

The presenter traveled to Ecuador and the Galapagos islands to experience and study the amazing biodiversity found nowhere else on earth; however, she almost missed out on the opportunity entirely because of her mental health. Regardless, she didn’t hold back and learned how to battle mental illness abroad and got the trip of a lifetime.

“What Makes the Philippines Beautiful?”

Philippines

Andrea Vega (USA)

Andrea recently came back from her study abroad in the Philippines. She participated in a semester long program at University of the Philippines-Los Baños this Spring 2018. She was able to learn and immerse into the Filipino culture during her stay in the Philippines. This was a time for Andrea to reflect on her previous experiences when she lived in Mexico, as well as her life in the USA, and to look ahead to her future role as an educator. Andrea had a priceless experience in Philippines and she doubts she would have had a similar experience in a developed country.

STUDENT PRESENTATIONS

Panel 8 | 3:00 - 4:00PM | Room 305
MODERATOR: Joyce Meier

“Real Connections: Summer in Harbin, China”

China

Abigail Caterina (USA) and Danielle Garlington (USA)

The presenters, Danielle and Abigail, are both Americans from the state of Michigan. They travelled to Harbin, China during the Summer of 2018 to study Mandarin Chinese and culture for two months. During their challenges and adventures in Harbin, they created true relationships with a diverse group of students. Presenters will discuss how they adapted to the changes abroad, and how a group of MSU students from different backgrounds became lifelong friends.

“Stepping Outside My Comfort Zone”

United States of America

Gregorio Gaio (Brazil)

Gregorio is an international undergraduate student originally from Brazil and is majoring in Mechanical Engineering. He lived most of his life in Brazil, but also lived for 6 years abroad in Mexico prior to coming to Michigan State University. Even though he has lived abroad, changing countries is always a tough experience and requires time to adapt. In his presentation, he will share his experience of how he has managed to adapt to the culture, weather, people, and language. Also, how he has managed to grow as student by joining various clubs and organizations, leaving his comfort zone on a daily basis.

“A New Perspective on the Adversity in Diversity”

Peru

Marissa Weil (USA)

The presenter spent her summer in rural Peru gaining experience in medical anthropology as she volunteered and researched the impact of culture on the local issue of anemia. During this time, she found that her light skin and hair color elicited an impactful response from many Peruvians, causing her to reflect on what it means to be a minority. Her presentation will consist of a summary of her experiences, as well as how her new understandings have affected her perspective upon returning to the United States.

STUDENT PRESENTATIONS

Panel 9 | 3:00 - 4:00PM | Room 307

MODERATOR: Fayyaz Hussain

“Ranking my Experience in Japan”

Japan

Dominique Overman (USA)

Dominique Overman is a master’s student in the Student Affairs Administration program. As a multi-ethnic, child of an immigrant, she has always had an interest in international contexts, with her career in education being no exception. Dominique studied abroad in Japan to learn more about their higher education system. Dominique’s presentation focuses on the importance of utilizing a critical lens when comparing higher education institutions via global ranking tools, as some perpetuate colonization and sexism. She shares how her trip inspired her to pursue international contexts, partner campuses, and colonization as research interests for her future Ph.D. and career as a professor.

“Learning is Everywhere”

Semester at Sea

Linlan (Camilla) Cai (China)

The presenter is an international undergraduate student from China majoring in Child Development and Elementary Education. She was born and raised in the Southern part of China. She participated in a program called Semester at sea in Fall 2017. In the presentation, she is going to share how the program helped her understand the world is a classroom and learning is everywhere.

“Redefining a Researcher’s Role: Field Notes & Observations”

Costa Rica

Kate Lafrenz (USA) and Emily Hatch (USA)

Emily Hatch is a junior majoring in arts & humanities with an additional major in political science/pre law. She is also a linked bachelor/master student in the first year of the MSU public policy program. Kate Lafrenz is a junior double majoring in communication and arts & humanities and minoring in public relations. Kate and Emily studied abroad in Costa Rica during the 2018 spring semester. During the first two months, they studied Spanish, sustainability, civic engagement, and Costa Rican history and culture. In the final two months, Emily and Kate were placed in a small community called Palmichal to complete a community participatory research project. In doing so, they learned to step out of their comfort zones and reshape their worldviews by working through language and cultural barriers and redefining the way they viewed their role as researchers and the approach to their research project.

STUDENT PRESENTATIONS

Panel 10 | 4:00 - 5:00PM | Room 303
MODERATOR: Karen Kangas-Preston

“Thank you, India”

India
Evan Haase (USA)

The presenter journeyed to India with MSU's Ecology of the Mountains study abroad program. The exposure was designed to provide a platform to study and experience the social, economic, ecological, and environmental issues linked to ongoing global environmental changes. He will share from his experiences and touch on his new perspectives and lessons learned.

“Eyes Wide Open”

United States of America
Ma'alim Samsuri (Malaysia)

Ma'alim is an international undergraduate psychology major at MSU and is super far away from Malaysia, the place she calls home. Being in the USA is a dream land where she seeks adventure that will teach her valuable lessons. Being abroad has made her feel more connected to home and has opened her eyes to appreciate all the little things in Malaysia. Now, having lived for a year in the States, she has learned valuable lessons, in a place where she felt so foreign before. Living in two different worlds has opened her eyes to see the world in a bigger perspective. With values from back home and the States, she has found a way to integrate them both!

“A Path Towards Change”

Australia & New Zealand
Rosy Lopez (USA)

Rosy Lopez is a senior at Michigan State University majoring in Interdisciplinary Studies with a cognate in Sociology. In her time being here, she has studied abroad in Mexico, Australia and New Zealand. Coming from her small town of Wauchula, FL, she has been able to uncover different parts of herself through her overall journey here at MSU. Learning the importance of overcoming fear and the unknown. She spent 6 weeks in Australia and New Zealand. During class time she was learning about the political and criminal justice systems of Australia, New Zealand and the United States. Though, most of her learning was done through her adventures outside of the class. She will share her journey of her path towards change.

STUDENT PRESENTATIONS

Panel 11 | 4:00 - 5:00PM | Room 305
MODERATOR: Joyce Meier

“The Intricacies of Human Connection”

Mexico
Najma Muhammad (USA)

The presenter studied abroad in Puebla, Mexico, in the Spring of 2018. Understanding that her experience as a Site Leader would be different from her experience as a participant she did not fully understand to what extent. She did not anticipate that her significant interactions with the young boys at the agency, her students, and herself would lead to her own personal healing in a completely unrelated area of her life. This presentation focuses on her healing process outside of her home country, and how experiences like these motivate her to add to her learning of history, life, people, and herself.

“A Lesson for Life”

United States of America
Abhimanyu Kinha (India)

The presenter is an international student from India, majoring in Mechanical Engineering. He was brought up in a rural part of country where he heard numerous stereotypes and blindly believed them. With such a background, it could not be easy for him to be in a country, about which everything he knew was negative. The experience that he had on the very day he arrived in the country saved him from a lot of unnecessary struggle that he would have gone through otherwise. That day, he learned a lesson of my life. During this presentation, Abhimanyu will walk you through his first day in the States.

“Power, Leadership, and Education: Young People Defeating a System Against Them”

South Africa
Yassah Bah-Deh (USA) and Deandrea White (USA)

Deandrea and Yassah studied abroad in South Africa during the summer of 2018. They had experiences with the South African culture and immersed themselves with the children in the village of Zonkizizwe. They learned about the relevant social issues like gender based violence and youth activism.

STUDENT PRESENTATIONS

Panel 12 | 4:00 - 5:00PM | Room 307

MODERATOR: Sara Bano

“Learning to Be the Change”

Greece, Mexico, & Netherlands

Oumie Nyassi (The Gambia)

The presenter is a senior majoring in Sociology and minoring in Peace and Justice Studies and Women’s and Gender Studies. She was born and spent a few years in The Gambia, but has lived in America for most of her life. She has studied abroad in three countries and has visited eight countries during her time at MSU. During her presentation, she will take you on her journey and share how the countries she’s visited, the people she’s met, and the challenges she’s faced have helped her grow and the impact they have all had on her. She will highlight how she’s learning to be the change she wishes to see in the world.

“Facing the Challenge and Owning it”

United States of America

Rumaisa Sababa Rahman (Bangladesh)

The presenter is an international student who came 8000 miles away from Bangladesh to pursue her higher education at MSU where she knew not a single soul. Through her presentation, she will take you on a roller coaster ride of the challenges, achievements, failures and successes that she was faced with over the course of her time here. So sit back, tighten your seat belts and get ready to ride into the life of Rumaisa.

“Winter is Coming”

Iceland

Ben Kessler (USA)

Ben went on a First-Year Seminar Abroad during the summer of 2018 to Iceland before his first year. Between Iceland’s fascinating medieval sagas, its gripping mythology, and its breathtaking landscape, he learned about cultural identities that people have and how they are expressed. By studying abroad, Ben learned how dynamic identities can be and how using knowledge about one’s past and present can pave the way for the future.
